Reflection for Today

Christ's Mission: Transforming Societies by Transforming Souls

Readings: Wisdom 11:22--12:2; Psalms 145:1-2, 8-9, 10-11, 13;
Second Thessalonians 1:11--2:2; Luke 19:1-10

If "seeking and saving what was lost" was Christ's mission, then it is also the Church's mission and if it is the Church's mission, it is also our mission. Amid the difficulties, sufferings, and preoccupations of life in a fallen world, it is easy to forget about that. But if we want to grow and persevere in our friendship with Christ, we simply cannot let ourselves forget about it. We are all surrounded by people like Zacchaeus, people convinced that happiness can be found in money, pleasure or popularity. Nevertheless, deep down in their hearts, they know instinctively that that is not true, and they are climbing all kinds of trees - New Age trees, yoga trees, self-indulgence trees - trying to catch a glimpse of the true Saviour.

By courageously being Christ's messengers in word, deed and example, we can bring them the satisfaction of finding, as Zacchaeus did, forgiveness, redemption and purpose. We can bring peace to troubled souls - not a peace that comes from us, since we are still imperfect, but the peace that comes from Christ, our King. Moreover, when we do that, we will bring peace to troubled societies. Zacchaeus's conversion brought relief to himself, his whole family and the entire region, all those who "grumbled" when Jesus went to stay at his house. This mission may seem too big for us. However, it is not, because we do not have to do it alone. Every time we celebrate the Eucharist, Christ will come and strengthen us repeatedly with His very own life, in Holy Communion. He will renew His promise to be with us, to guide us, to comfort us. When He does, let us renew our promise to follow His example.

Fr. Anthony Htun

This week we had the College sports prize giving on Thursday evening and the final school assembly on Friday morning, where the principal announced the head prefect and prefects for 2023. Both events were held in the Church because the school gym is under major renovation. We are grateful to the parish priests and the Sacred Heart community for allowing the school to use the church.
